

Most names the volume drops are people it never gave an entry

All 1,101 person-mentions found inside other entries, by how the matcher resolved them. 367 reach a notice and 137 are refused because a surname fits more than one — those become no tie at all rather than a guess. The largest group, 597, is neither: these are real members of this elite whom Lambert never wrote up, and they enter the network as nodes without attributes.
