

A third of this elite cannot be placed on either side of the colonial line

Every person in the volume by the side the record places them on, and by the kind of fact that placed them. 496 of 1346 are not placed at all: 391 because their notice prints no birthplace and names no communal institution, and 100 because it prints a Tunisian birthplace, which fits a Tunisian family and a settler's son equally well. The native count is therefore a floor. Note also that the two sides are reached by different evidence — 581 of the 720 colonists by a birthplace, 115 of the 130 natives by a communal institution — which fig. 55 shows is not a harmless difference.
