

Most careers cross a sector line; half still end where they began

The 175 people with two or more posts whose sector could be coded, by whether their recorded career stays inside one sector. 58% leave at least once, yet 50% finish in the sector they started in — of the 102 who moved, only 15 came back. Fig. 18 shows which lines get crossed; this shows how many people cross one, which a transition count cannot.

